

I know that you love beautifully designed glasses and that you carry out a lot of research, where does this passion come from and what is your background?

Yes, I do love beautifully designed glasses and I am very fortunate to have been introduced to gorgeous eyewear in the mid 80's. Design is what attracts me to anything in life, though I ensure that my personal life is kept simple. I love modern design in everything, be it houses, apartments, stores and eyewear and I complement them with a perfect blend of colors. Both Jennie and I are from Tanzania; thus we have had the opportunity to live in a natural, untouched habitat that allowed us to appreciate nature's colors as well as its simplicity.

Your wife has had an important role in your choices, can you tell us about that?

My wife Jennie is the one who introduced me to high-end eyewear, when she owned an optical boutique in the fancy part of Toronto. She joined Delta Optical about seven years ago and has given me a different perspective in buying for the stores, which has been very helpful.
